Gospel: Luke 10:1-12

We need to have a respect for this narrative in this account of 1st Century communication. The direction to 'carry no purse, no bag, no sandals', even when translated as 'no wallet, no suitcase, no change of clothes, no car', can be a counsel of irresponsibility if taken literally – not to mention the authority given to the seventy to tread on snakes and scorpions and not be hurt. Despite our shortage of vocations in our times, this to be taken literally would end the possibility of having any vocations whatsoever including my own. The point that Jesus is making is that it may be their lives will encounter hardships of the kind where they may have no food to eat, or home to stay in, or sandals on their feet. But this is not Jesus' wish for them but at the out set of the mission He makes it clear to them rejection will create deprivation.

You are probably wondering how the trip went, well, I am still sobering up and I now realize French vino is superior to California wine and cheaper. The craic was good and the people were great, and Limoux is Limoux.

Get the wrong people off the bus.
Get the right people on the bus.
And the right people on the right side of the bus."
