Gospel: Matthew 16:13-19

Jesus selected Peter to be the rock for his Church. It was his and only his decision and he chose Peter. From the Scriptures it is clear, that the other eleven apostles would never have picked Peter. He was not popular with them, James and John had already sought the position. Peter spoke often but failed to follow through on his word. Mark's Gospel constantly has him in a negative light to the point where it is suggested did he love Jesus at all. During all of Jesus ministry and for years after his death, Peter was no rock, but babbling, bumbling and fumbling his way around. Much later in his life, he became the rock Christ envisioned of him. The Church down through the centuries have remained faithful to Christ Vicar's whether they were competent or not.
