Gospel: Luke 21: 5 – 19

Jesus didn't hold anything back from his disciples. He told them things would be difficult. When He spoke about the world, He was truly realistic. He spoke to them about wars, revolutions, earthquakes, plagues, famines, persecutions, imprisonment, hatred, betrayals, killings, and falsehoods. Nothing has changed since those words were first spoken by Christ. The world still has the same problems.

From the Pew:

If parishioners wish to have Masses said for a loved one, All Souls envelopes are on tables by the front door.

Last week's parish picnic was great fun. Thanks to the Parnow Family for organizing the preparation and cleanup. A special thanks to Victor who brought over a freshly roasted pig as the main highlight of the event. Despite Cia making faces sympathizing the poor pig, everybody enjoyed the dish. Also a big thank to all the entertainers performing jokes, songs & dance, and piano - especially the kids of the Foley's and O'Mahony's.

Congratulations to Robin and Victor Khomin, married at St. Mary's last Saturday. Their German shepherd was designated as ring bearer. Martha McNeil cleverly placed apples around the church attracting the cows to come by in the most perfect timing for the exciting bride and groom's photo ops in front of the church.

Next week, 2nd collection at St. Cecilia's for the trimming of trees; at St. Mary's for the sanctuary lighting system.

Next Sunday, Valley Interfaith Thanksgiving Service, 4 p.m. at St. Cecilia's. We are host to this year's ecumenical gathering. We thank Cia Donahue & Geraldine Walsh for organizing the program with the valley faith communities. The theme evolves around thanksgiving for water and symbols of life. Parishioners please bring donations for the food bank (non-perishable food, cash, or checks payable to SGVCC), also bring finger food to share for the reception following the service.

Volunteers needed for the Thanksgiving Service next Sunday. Call Fr. O'.

Do you change your own oil? One gallon of motor oil can contaminate 1 million gallons of water. There's only one right way to dispose of used oil: recycle it.

Msgr. Campion, publisher of Our Sunday Visitors, stated "the church needs to change the way it communicates. Church leaders are aware that most Catholics get its news about its own church from the secular media. This media is often unsupportive of faith issues."
