Obviously these two men would have been associated with the Ebionite communities. They met, sat and ate with Christ, making them a part of the historical Christ. They may even have been present at the first Eucharist since they recognized Him in the breaking of bread. Like all early believers, theirs was a gradual process to Faith.

Prince William and Catherine got married on April 29th at Westminster Abbey, London, for 500 years, a house of worship of the church of England. However, prior to possession, it was a Roman Catholic Benedictine site dedicated to St. Peter. These were centers for worship, education and services. Once King Henry VIII split with Rome, the monasteries were deprived of protections under the law. Queen Elizabeth I disbanded the monastery. It has always remained a church and is maintained by the British state today. Almost every king & queen has been crowned in this church.
