The Church certainly has boded for material security which morally it would have to do than Christ's instruction of no money, no food, no sack. It must also be said Judas held the money followers gave in supporting them so it wasn't they had no finance. What is important is to work for the Gospel.

Pope Francis Encyclical on the Environment

[Part 2 of 4] The loss of thousands of species to the planet, we have no such right to do this damage to the ecosystem. The poor bear the biggest impact of environmental destruction. They die young, resources stolen from them by corporations and the media. Governments remain mute to the cry of the poor. A minority believe they have the right to the world's resources, keep consuming at any cost. Leadership on this issue is deplorable. Political and financial gain is all that matters. Creation is a gift from God to humanity. We need to be good stewards of the priceless gift of nature's gifts.

By the Numbers American Catholics who think climate change is serious:

Minor Problem	23%
Major Problem	39%
No Problem	15%
Crisis	21%
Don't know	2%
