Pope Francis

The more we make Faith the center of our lives, the more it makes us close to each other.

The tragic case of the British boy Charlie Gard with an incurable genetic disease has caught the attention of communities. The story raised parental right as the hospital would not discharge Charlie to his parents. The hospital decided to end life support as the parents looked to U.S. medical procedures where a new therapy is being developed. The parents had raised 1 million to travel. These courts decisions favoring hospitals is unprecedented and frightening. Parents have a right to extraordinary care if they can afford it. The point is we have the right to have the autonomy to make medical decisions for ourselves and not strangers as the state deciding the final word as whether I live or die.

Did you know First Athletic Championships first began in 1983.
